

Creative Works- Artistic Statement

The Comic Book was inspired by a 'Pop Art' poster that often caught my eye at our weekly Catamount cohort gatherings. The vibrant colors and boldness of the poster reminded me of just how genuinely dynamic the accessibility community is.

The wonderful people I have met along this journey with the Fellowship, particularly the amazing folks I encountered at "Inclusio," radiated brightness and an infectious passion for inclusivity. Their accessibility community and the fantastic people from "Accessible Homes Calgary" are passionate, kind, and dynamic. This was evident in their innovative ideas and proactive efforts to address accessibility barriers. Conversations with them sparked new insights and allowed me to see how the conventional norms and stereotypes surrounding disability are incorrect. Their commitment to breaking down societal stigmas and barriers profoundly impacted me and will remain with me.

The "Comic Book" hopes to showcase the bright, dynamic, fun, and capable attributes that people in the Accessibility community show. The comic also reflects strength and resilience, traits that all superheroes have, and all the people I have met along this journey.
