

Mount Royal's Awards Corner March 2010

Mount Royal's staff and faculty are among the best in the business and that doesn't go without recognition. Face Time regularly gets wind of members of the Mount Royal community who are awarded for their outstanding contributions, efforts and research.

In order to more efficiently recognize these achievements we are starting a Mount Royal University Awards Corner. Every couple months we will post a list of our most recent award winners here with a brief description of who they are, and what they've won.

Here are our initial winners, congratulations:

1. The Continuing Education marketing team received an award on behalf of their faculty for Excellence in Website Design from LERN (Learning Resources Network). The plaque was presented at the annual LERN conference held in Savannah, Georgia this past Nov.

2. Mount Royal's Office of University Advancement was recently awarded a silver and merit award for "Total PR Program" in the Higher Education Marketing Awards. UA's studio designer, Jamie Hurst was also awarded a Merit Award for her speaker series poster.
3. Bissett School of Business faculty member, Kalinga Jagoda and Pamini Thangarajah of the Department of Mathematics, Physics and Engineering had a paper, Comparative Evaluation of Production Efficiency: A DEA Approach nominated for the Best Paper

Award this past fall at the World Congress on Engineering and Computer Science at the University of California Berkeley in San Francisco.

4. Mount Royal professor of music, Cecilia Grimstead was presented with the Elkhorn Award for Band Director of the Year from the Alberta Band Association this past fall by the Phi Beta Mu chapter.

If you would like to let us know of an award you've recently won, please send your personal information, a quote, headshot and brief description of the award to thisweek@mtroyal.ca
