FALL 2025 CALENDAR YEAR

Planning your Aviation Management coursework

BAM Terminology

The BAM is made up of:

- 20 major courses (that all BAM students must take)
- 6 concentration courses (largely dependent on if you are pursuing flight training or not)
- 10 General Education courses (the breadth of your degree)
- 4 elective courses (courses of your choice, but could include minor coursework, further coursework in your intended field, international exchange courses, and field school opportunities)

What are...

Pre-requisites - courses that must successfully be completed PRIOR to taking a higher-level course (i.e. ACCT 2121 is a pre-requisite for ACCT 3224).

Recommended preparation - where having prior coursework in the subject may prove beneficial to students, but is not required for higher-level courses.

Advice from your Advisors

- Consider a balanced approach when picking your courses
 - * Take major, general education and elective courses each semester.
 - * Consider your personal strengths and weaknesses when picking courses to achieve a reasonable courseload and workload.
 - * Keep in mind your commitments outside of the classroom (flight training, work, student clubs, volunteering, etc.) when determining your schedule.
- Communicate any difficulties that you are having with your professor - the earlier you identify any issues, the earlier you can address them!
- The majority of core BAM courses are offered in the Fall, Winter and Spring semesters - but some AIRF courses are only offered once per year or only in the Fall and Winter. Consult with your Advisor if you have questions.
