Andrew Thomas

Andrew is a communications professional and educator with 7 years of non-profit, government, and industry experience where he has worked to advance digital teaching and learning practices at diverse organizations.

Andrew has taught communications skills throughout his career from professional development courses to post-secondary courses, both online and face to face. Andrew also provides communications and research consulting services for purpose-driven organizations with projects in organizational data management, community development, and non-profit technological innovation.

Andrew is a strong proponent of community-driven learning. He is currently serving as a board member for the Arusha Centre and regularly volunteers with community-based historical research projects in Calgary.
