Become an informed citizen as you make connections between current events, politics and world events. You'll expand your social and community contacts as you develop your ability to discuss and understand world events.

You will show your understanding of current events through oral presentations, reports, posters, newspaper articles or letters.

When you finish this course, you will:

- » have an increased awareness of the world around you and your place in it
- » understand current events and be able to talk about them with other people
- » have the skills to use technology to find and analyze information on current events
- » be able to locate countries that dominate media reports on a map

More than just a class

- » Participate in interactive learning activities
- » Experience Mount Royal University campus life
- » Meet new people
